

'THE WEDDING MARCH 3: HERE COMES THE BRIDE'

Synopsis

Former college sweethearts and current wedding planners Olivia (Josie Bissett) and Mick's (Jack Wagner) plans for a relaxing Valentine's Day together change when they hear that Mick's sister Bonnie (Gabrielle Miller), Mick's daughter Julie (Sarah Grey), Julie's boyfriend Wyatt (Mitch Ainley), Olivia's mother Nora (Susan Hogan) and Nora's boyfriend Johnny (Serge Houde) are all coming for a weekend at the Inn. The visitors bring surprises. Bonnie reveals that she is engaged and after just eight months with Sean (Peter Benson), a man from Mick's past who he does not trust, and Julie announces she plans to drop out of college to pursue her passion for cooking. Olivia jumps into wedding mode to help plan Bonnie and Sean's last-minute wedding.

Mick is skeptical of Julie's plans to drop out of college, despite her efforts to demonstrate her culinary skill. Wyatt is upset that Julie plans to leave college and move away from him. This results in a fight and Wyatt leaves the Inn, both he and Julie fearing their relationship is over. Mick encourages him to pause and think about everything he loves about Julie before leaving.

Sean seems disengaged throughout the weekend, always checking his phone and regularly receiving calls and texts from an attractive woman, which adds to Mick's dislike and distrust of him. Mick eventually reveals these concerns to Bonnie, who takes great offense and decides to have their wedding elsewhere. Olivia encourages Mick to apologize.

Mick takes Olivia's advice and apologizes to Bonnie – presenting her with their late father's tie clip for Sean to wear at the wedding. Bonnie accepts his apology and admits that she is worried that Sean has been distant all weekend, including leaving the Inn for a last-minute business trip to New York just days before the wedding. Mick tells Julie that although he wants her to finish college, he supports her in following her cooking passion. He also encourages Nora to go easy on Olivia, as her constant criticism on everything ranging from Olivia's appearance to her untraditional relationship with Mick hurts Olivia's feelings.

When Sean arrives back to the Inn, he reveals his distant behavior was because he was surprising Bonnie with the wedding dress of her dreams, which he picked up in New York along with designer dresses for all of the other women! Bonnie and Sean's wedding at the Inn goes off without a hitch, and Wyatt even surprises Julie at the ceremony – with Mick's encouragement, he had stayed at the Inn the whole time! The two decide they can make their long distance relationship work when Julie takes a gap year to pursue cooking before finishing college. The surprises aren't over just yet, as Johnny proposes to Nora. Happy couples surround Mick and Olivia, but they feel like the happiest of them all.
