ENTERTAINMENT'S BIGGEST SUCCESS STORY!

AUTUMN REESER AND MARC BLUCAS STAR IN A TASTY SUMMER TREAT
'SEASON FOR LOVE'
PREMIERING AUGUST 25, ON HALLMARK CHANNEL

Part of the Network's "Summer Nights" Programming Event

STUDIO CITY, CA July 18, 2018 Autumn Reeser ("A Bramble House Christmas," "Entourage") and Marc Blucas ("Miss Christmas," Brawl in Cell Block 99) star in Hallmark Channel's "Season for Love," a new, original movie premiering Saturday, August 25, (9 p.m. ET/PT) as the finale of the network's "Summer Nights" programming event celebrating the sun-drenched days of leisure and love.

It's been years since high school sweethearts Tyler (Reeser) and Corey (Blucas) saw each other and now they're back in Red Rock, Texas, competing in the Annual BBQ Cook-off. She just lost her job as a sous chef in San Francisco and he's flying in from New York to be the festival's celebrity chef. Definitely coming from different places in their lives, they still feel the same about being back home and cooking great BBQ. But even with three bestselling cookbooks, his own product line, three restaurants and his own TV cooking show in the works, Corey is reluctant to get back to all the big city hoopla. And even though Tyler has just been offered the position of head chef at a new Bay Area restaurant, she's not ready to leave her hometown. It could just be the heat of the cooking competition, but sparks have definitely been flying between these two. In fact, right up until the final moment of the cook-off, no one knows who will claim victory...and it might just be the people of this All-American town who will come out the winners.

"Season for Love" is a Breakthrough Entertainment film. Michael G. Larkin is the executive producer. Ira Levy and Marek Posival serve as producers. Jill Carter directs from a screenplay by Heather Provost and Scott Damian.
