

'LOVE, TAKE TWO' Synopsis

Reality show executive producer Lily Bellenger (Heather Hemmens) returns to Pineville, the small town where she attended college, to shoot the next episode of "The Wedding Countdown." She's a great producer and is hoping to get an overall production deal with the network. When one of the three couples back out of doing the new episode, Lily must quickly find a local couple wanting to get married on TV.

Newly engaged, Brynn (Tara Erica Moore) talks her fiancé Scott (Cornelius Smith Jr.) into participating, encouraged by the $15,000 each couple gets to plan their wedding, not to mention the $50,000 the winning couple gets to start married life together. There's only one hitch; Scott is Lily's former boyfriend from college. Following an awkward conversation, Scott and Lily are comfortable that their past won't have any impact on the present. However, throughout the week of the show's production, Lily and Scott find themselves alone together several times, eating at their favorite diner and visiting old haunts they both loved in college. Though it's been 10 years since they've seen one another, it isn't long before each begins to feel that familiar spark that brought them together in the first place. But with Scott and Brynn getting married in just a few days, this is no time for he and Lily to rekindle their old flame.

While in Pineville, Lily runs into Michelle Townshend (Patti Allan), the beloved college professor who encouraged Lily's writing career, which started out strong but fizzled out a few years after college. Once again inspired by her former professor, Lily picks up a journal, starts writing and feels really good about it, like perhaps she should revisit her passion one again.

Before long, Lily and Scott become confused by the feelings each is experiencing while together, and it starts to show. In fact, his friend Jeff warns Scott to tread lightly where Lily is concerned. As Brynn gets more and more excited about how being on the show can positively impact her online lifestyle business, Scott becomes wary about her reasons for wanting to get married on the show in the first place. Brynn begins pushing a conversation with Scott about moving to Los Angeles soon for her business, apparently unconcerned for Scott's growing antique business in Pineville or his desire to stay put.

Just minutes before their on-camera wedding is to start, Scott and Brynn realize they are just not the right match for one another. This leaves Lily with a disaster on her hands as no couple has ever backed out of their wedding on the show before. With the powerful network executive who is responsible for Lily's future in TV production looking over her shoulder, Lily must now deal with Scott and Brynn's nuptial nightmare, decide where her professional passion truly lies, and whether she and Scott might actually have a future together in Pineville.
